

COLUMBIA U. SHAME ON YOU

On January 19th, pro-Palestine student protesters were attacked with a chemical spray known as skunk. The chemical attack led to multiple hospitalizations and reports of illness, but rather than seeking justice for the victims, Columbia chose to reprimand them for demonstrating instead. On top of the school's November decision to suspend the Jewish Voice for Peace and Students for Justice in Palestine campus chapters, Columbia has made it clear which side they stand on, and who & what they protect.

OUR INSTITUTIONS ARE COMPLICIT
FREE PALESTINE NOW

COLUMBIA U. SHAME ON YOU

On January 19th, pro-Palestine student protesters were attacked with a chemical spray known as skunk. The chemical attack led to multiple hospitalizations and reports of illness, but rather than seeking justice for the victims, Columbia chose to reprimand them for demonstrating instead. On top of the school's November decision to suspend the Jewish Voice for Peace and Students for Justice in Palestine campus chapters, Columbia has made it clear which side they stand on, and who & what they protect.

OUR INSTITUTIONS ARE COMPLICIT
FREE PALESTINE NOW